

Acknowledging Your Resilience

S.N. Taylor

Life here lately has been a tad bit different.
No, let's be honest, it's been beyond different.

We've had to modify the way we live, play, and learn.
But that has not stopped you, any of you, from continuing your educational journey.

You've mastered virtual learning.
You've employed zoom technologies to ensure group
assignments are completed.
You've adapted to the ever-changing world and campus settings.
You've proven that nothing will stand in the way of your success.
You've been resilient.

Many will enter fields that will require you to continue to be flexible.
You should be confident in your abilities to do so.
You are resilient.

Your resilience is not unnoticed.
Your resilience will help shape the future and your continued success.
Your resilience tells others that it can and will be done.
Your resilience tells me that you are destined for greatness.
Your resilience gives me hope for the future.
Your resilience, I acknowledge today!!

Continue to be resilient, today, tomorrow and in all your future endeavors Rutgers Raptors.
